No Other Week as Quiet as the Quietest Week in Lent.

AFTER - EASTER GAYETY

They Will Be the Gayest Weeks Norfolk Ever Enjoyed, Because There are Many More People and They are Better Able to Be Gay.

(Special to The Times Dispatch.)
NORFOLK, VA., MARCH 28.—This has been the quetest week of Light. That means, of course, the quietest week of whole year, for no other week can be as quiet as the quietest week in Lent. does not mean that there will be little doing here when Easter comes and gives society the permission and the op-portunity, of the passage of winter and the approach, the enlivening and reinvigorating spring, to be gay; but it means rather that, having been so quiet, society must be unusually gay to recover from enforced, even if a welcome, restraint of religious rest. That is what society is of religious rest. That is what society is preparing for. The weeks following Easter will be gay. They will be the gayest weeks Norfolk over enjoyed because there are many more people, and they are much better able to be gay than the people of Norfolk have been since the war. As during the winter, this gayety will not be manifested by great functions, to which many persons go to see who else is there and how they appear in their new clothes. There will be many small and genuins entertainments and receptions, where the members of the social sets meet for the recreations, pleasures and the delightful and sweet, but innocent, gossip of the season—and for those charming coquetries which are the essential accessories of all social gatherings. As there were no ovents this week, and as society was preparing to be gay after Easter, there is nothing to write of, except visits and visitors and there are comparatively few of them.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleaning purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it, the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines, and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetuns the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onlons and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe eathartic.

the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another; but probably the best charcosl and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow tharcoal and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in ... a form of large, pleasant-tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the coality of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffele physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gus in the stemach and bowels, and it clears the composion and purifies the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the live is greatily benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe i get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

Hoover.

The performance will be given for the benefit of the Odd-Fellows. The story of the play is as follows; "James Marsh, an old merchant, the father of two daughters, is on the verge of failure, when Henry Cameron, a banker, asks permission to address his eldest daughter, Lucille, who is engaged to a young man in Denver, Col. The merchant keeps this engagement a secret, and persuades the girl (who resents the neglect of the Colorado man) to consent to marry the banker and save himself from bank-ruptcy. Later a fight tea is held, which is rich in gossip, at which various types of people are introduced, all more or less inclimed to matrimony, with wealth as the principal incentive. Some of the loyomakings are beautiful in sentiment, while others are ridiculously amusing and keep the audience roaring with laughter. The Colarado man makes his appearance and the banker sorrowfully departs, but later the skies clear up and all ends well.

The performance of "Puss and Boots," given at the Academy Thursday night for the benefit of the Ladles' Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association, attracted a large audience, and was a great success.
